

THE KEENAS

ORIGINAL | SEMI-ACOUSTIC | FOLK, BLUES, ROCK

THE KEENAS are a trio of Boulder, Colorado musicians presenting original alternative folk/rock/blues featuring the vocals of Caroline Quine. The emphasis is on well-crafted compositions that intertwine vocals, melodic electric guitar, and rhythmic support from hand drums. The members have played in various formats over the years, from solo/duo to full rock and roll bands, but settled on the trio format to concentrate on intimate venues where the details of songwriting and performance can be communicated. The eclectic original songs range from the ethereal beauty of When I Fly, to the rolling blues of Round and Round and humorous forays like I Want to Be an Economist and Left Lane Lover.

BIOS

Caroline Quine (vocals, bass/acoustic guitar): Caroline's roots are folk and blues, but her captivating vocals transcend genre. She has previously collaborated with Craig in Girl Talk and The Empirics, as well as appearing solo and with Ohio folk artist Steve Madewell.

Craig Blockwick (songwriter/electric guitar):

Craig's melodic guitar establishes the framework and counterpoint for Caroline's vocals. His style originated in the bending and vibrato of blues but has migrated toward a melodic, jazzier style. But he can still lay down classic blues on songs like Round and Round and Sunny Day Blues. His distinct and eclectic songwriting presents a wide variety of sound coloring, rhythm and energy.

Mike Manning (hand drums/vocals):

Mike has been a performer in a variety of bands, from rock to Celtic. His hand drumming helps define the The Clarks sound, enabling the band to go from quiet ballads to high energy romps with rhythmic support that does not overpower the melodic elements of the songs. Mike enjoys lead vocal duty on several songs, and has written lyrics for some of the more amusing offerings like Left Lane Lover and Cell Phone Song.
